

Letter of Recommendation for Mr. Constantinos Frangeskou

It is my pleasure to write this letter of recommendation for Mr. Constantinos Frangeskou.

During his undergraduate studies, Constantinos attended the course “CS359 – Web Development” that I taught (for the academic year 2025-26), a highly practical and demanding course that includes multiple programming assignments, a final project, and a written final examination. Throughout the semester, Constantinos consistently demonstrated excellent performance, achieving a perfect score (100/100) in all assignments as well as in the final project. He also performed exceptionally well in the final exam, resulting in an overall course grade of 9/10, which is considered an excellent achievement (he was on the top 10% concerning the grades of the course CS359 in that academic year).

His work stood out for its technical quality, attention to detail, and strong understanding of modern web development principles. He demonstrated the ability to design and implement complete web applications, effectively combining frontend and backend technologies (such as node.js), while adhering to best practices in usability, responsiveness, and clean code structure.

In addition to his technical skills, Constantinos proved to be highly reliable, motivated, and committed to delivering high-quality results. His consistency and dedication throughout the course were exemplary. In short, he is a very capable and highly promising young computer scientist, and I strongly support his future academic or professional pursuits.

Sincerely,

Dr. Michalis Mountantonakis,

Laboratory Teaching Staff - University of Crete Department of Computer Science and Postdoctoral Researcher - FORTH-ICS
